BALTIMORE, Oct. 18—3 A. M.

Harper's Ferry has been taken possession of by companies from Charlestown and Shepardstown, Va., and Frackrick, Md. The rioters are entrenched in the Armory, and hold Mr. Washington and Mr. Lafenfeld prisoners. The insurrectionists are commanded by Capt. Brown, of Kansas notoriety. They first visited the school house, where numbered originally 17 white men and 5 blacks, several of whom were shot. Two men of the Martinsburgh Company were shot dead whilst charging on the Armory. A portion of the insurgents then left here under command of a leader named Cook, who, with a large party of slaves is supposed to be moving the always party of slaves is supposed to be moving toward Pennsylvania. are done with them.

Brown is better to-day, and has made a fuller statement of his operations. He says that he had rented the farm of Dr. Kennedy, six months since, and the rent is paid until next March. He never had over 22 men at the farm at one time, that belonged to the organization, but that he had good reason to expect reinforcements from Maryland, Ken-tucky, North and South Carolina and the lanadas. He had provided arms sufficient for 1,500 men, including 200 revolvers, 200 Sharp's rifles and 1,000 spears, all of which were left at the farm. He also had an abunwere left at the farm. He also had an abundance of powder and fixed ammunition.

All arms were from time to time brought from Connecticut and other Eastern points to Chambersburg, Pensylvania, and were directed to J. Smith & Sons, Kennedy farm, his assumed name. They were packed in double boxes, so as to deceive pattes who handled them on their way to the farm. He says that he made one mistake in either not detailing the train on Snuday night, or else. says that he made one mistake in either not detaining the train on Sunday night or else permitting it to go on unmolested; this mistake he seemed to infer exposed his doings too soon and prevented his reinforcements coming. IOWA, (MAJORITIES.)

Total, 47 counties, 6905 Republican maj. 2354 Republican gain, 848 2111 ----

We have now heard from two-thirds of the votes of the State. In no county but one have the Democrats gained on the vote of 1857, and in only one have the Republicans lost. The tide of revolution has evidently tost. The tide of revolution has evidently been running swiftly in every section of the State. We feel there is no longer any doubt of a thorough R-publican triumph in Minneant. Our Engle of Victory has been impatient to fly for a day or two; but we have een restraining his ardor, until we can do s did as well as was anticipated, the majority will exceed the above estimate. The Legiswill exceed the above estimate. The Legist lature is decidedly Republican in both branches, there being a majority of nine in the Senate, and about forty-two in the House. This will give the Republicans a majority of fifty one on joint ballot, securing the election of a State Tressurer.

The following is decided by the decided of the complete of the found in Complete of the compl

HABUDE'S FERRY, Oct. 18—12 M.

The Armor has just been stormed and taken, after a determined resistance. Col. Shutt approached with a flag of truce and demanded the surrender of the Armory. After expostulating for some time, the rioters refused. The marines then advanced and made a charge endeswing to break open the door a few minutes the resistance was at an end The rioters were brought out amidst the most intense excitement, many of the armed tinguished arrivals by one of the recent militia present trying to get an opportunity steamers from Europe is Madame Omar Pato shoot them. Capt. Brown and his son were both shot.

The dead body of a man shot yesterday was found within the Armory. Brown declares that there was none engaged in the plot but those who accompanied him. The prisoners are retained without the Armory enclosure.

spection of all who doubt its authenticity:

Massers, Onno, Oct. 12th, 1550.

Some time in the year 1541, Liou Silverman, and a man by the name of Greenawalt, were first known in this city as peddlars. They made the Phoenix Hotel this city as peddlars. They made the Phoenix Hotel their home, peddled around the country and formed acquaintances. After a while they opened a store of dry goods, made quite a parade of doing business, and purchased produce of the formers, for which at first hey paid—then they purchased all they could get on readii—and among other things purchased a lot of pook of considerable value, and induced a person in the neighbornood to sign a note with them for the value of the pork, then shipped the pork to Greviand. About this time their credit failed, and another man appeaded by the name of Silverman, who claimed all the goods in the store, either as the original owner or as assigner, and also represented that the bill of lading was assigned to him, as did also Liou Silverman and Greenawalt.

and Greenwalt.

Creditors became alarmed. A capies was sued out against them. Jion Silverman escaped, and has never returned, GREEN SWART, HISPARTNER, WAS TAKEN AND IMPRISONED! The bill of loading toos found on his person, in prison, and the bail partially indemnified. The goods were anached by creditors, and claimed by the other Silverman, but his claim was not sustained. They were of small value proportionately to the debts. They result was nearly a dead loss to creditors. The career of those nearly a dead loss to creditors. The career of those near was short and rapid and has twery appearance of a DESUNDEL. Such was the impression of this community at the time. By reference to the records of our court, it appears has the first wit against them was returnable to the June term, 1842. it appears that the first writ against them was returnable to the June term, 1542.

Such is the brief history of Stiverman & Greenawalt All the particulars are not fully remembered, and if they were, they would be too voluntious for this letter. That the whole transaction was a PHEMEDITATED SWINDIE, was then the universal opinion of those conversant with it, and nothing has since occurred to Nelie, deal kindly —speak kindly, and more loriagly to the solitary and psculiar woman; you little know, my child, the anguish of battling with the 'army of plantoms' that will beleaguer the hourse sail laft descriptions the target. human soul left alone-alone to the combat human soul telt alone—alone to the combat! or how impossible it is for it to remain unscathed, undisfigured.

"Many years passed: the tiny laurels and other evergreeos which Miss Benson had planted on each side the flagged pathway had grown to large, substantial shrubs; the laburnums and likes were in full blossom, and nums and lilass were in full blossom, and reached to the upper window; the lilies of the valley were just peeping into bloom; after long dry winds, heavy rains had set in, and the grateful vegetation scened expanding with renowed life and vigor. Miss Benson had been ill, and confined to her room with headachs. Your grandfather was on the eve of his marriage with my mother—a lively, pretty girl—and full of happy plans for 'settling;' but in his own heart-conforthe forgot not the sad and alling. It had always been his oustom to pay Miss Benson the attention of sending her the London paper. One evening, returning wet and late to his home, at his door stood Becky.

"'Please, sir, Miss Benson's compliments; if you would step up there directly, she if you would step up there directly, she would be so much obliged."

"Now, or in the morning ? he said, hesitating.

"Now, sir, if possible; I never see Missis "I will be there in quarter of an hour."
"I will be there in quarter of an hour."
"Becky ushered him into the old oak sitting-room. He gave her his wet coat to dry, and advanced to the bright wood fire. There ed an air of intense gloom to the dark wain-scot and brown boards. "The door opened; Miss Benson entered.

She had a large white shault thrown over her head, and the quick gliding way in which she crossed the room involuntarily made him she crossed the room involuntarity made him think of something unearthly. Her eyes, generally soft and sad, had an eagor wild-ness; her lips and cheeks were white. "I fear you are very ill; what can I do?" he uttered, in alarm.

he uttered, in alarm.

"She did not reply to his question; but, with a painfully carnest look, said, 'You are a friend to the friendless.'

"I am a friend to you,' he said, pityingly and soothingly, 'if you will let me be.—

Come, what is it?"

"You can, indeed do me an important service,' she susweed more carrier, but service,' she answered, more calmly, but with a heavy sigh. She motioned to him to be seated, and, giving him the paper which she had brought in her hand, pointed to a clause and bid him read.

"'I trouble you; but I have no other friend, again she said, half to herself. The friend, again she said, half to herself. The tone was so mournful that his young heart, full of its own hopes and loves—could not but marmur, 'God help you!'

"'He does help me,' she whispered, quickly, 'Oc! should be'——she bit her lip, and was silent, while he read.

"It was a reward offered for the apprehension of a man who had embezzled a large amount of the property of a firm with which he was connected. He carefully read it through. On looking up, his eyes encountered with Miss Benson's fixed on him, with a look which he said he never could forget.

"'I see, I am to do what I can; but, dearest Miss Benson, I do not quite understand how I am to be of service in this matter.' how I am to be of service in this matter.

''For one moment she gave way: tears streamed down her face. She made a movement as it she would kneel down to him: he gently placed her beside him, and controlling his voice, for he too was much moved—such agony he had never witnessed before—quietly
